Life in an Existing Exposure Situation

Chair’s Reflections, Day #2

Simon Carroll
Four key themes

• Dialogue – stakeholder engagement
• On-going development of processes
• Adapting to the prevailing conditions – a framework for learning
• Co-ordinated actions towards a common goal
Dialogue – stakeholder engagement

- The fully visible things: decisions, actions
- Partly visible, not fully seen: strategies, goals, policies
- Unseen, hidden: assumptions, norms, values

Iceberg analogy
Dialogue – stakeholder engagement

The importance of listening to and seeking to understanding others’ perspectives
Stakeholder Engagement

• It may be useful to develop a Process Model for Stakeholder engagement (many examples)

• In order to:
  – Make explicit the key elements or steps of Stakeholder engagement in this context
  – Clarify expectations on how this will be undertaken
  – Enable shared understanding of legitimate expectations for the process
Actions are iterative, learning processes
Adapting to the prevailing conditions - a framework for learning (1/2)

This is not enough!
Adapting to the prevailing conditions - a framework for learning (2/2)

Many actors - all have a role

But creates a risk that each one is pulling in a different direction!
Many actors - all have a role

Co-ordinated efforts towards realising a common vision!
If it's important to you you will find a way.

Thank you!
